Punchline

By Jim Pepper

Back in the 70's my buddy, Johnny, and I decided to take the Power Squadron Navigation course. It was a treat for me to take a course that wasn't connected to a university, and I really enjoyed learning something different.

Anyway, we passed. I guess the instructor liked us. Thus, it was that we decided to go across the lake to Erie, Pennsylvania on Johnny's brother-in-law, Bob's boat. A few days of R and R. (One of those R's might have been rum and maybe the other root beer;) I'm not saying....

We set out in the early morning hours with a plotted course via the various navigational buoys that would keep us off Pottohawk Bar, Bluff Bar and well off the tip of the lighthouse at the end of Long Point. Even we were surprised to see the buoys come up exactly where and when expected. Once around Long Point, it was off to Presquile Yacht Club in Erie.

We had a lot of laughs and it was a great time. When we decided to head back, conditions were hazy, but what the heck, we had plotted the course bang-on to get there, so why not do the opposite to get back. We rounded Presquile Point and set a compass course for Long Point. After many minutes elapsed past the time that we had expected to see the lighthouse, we began to wonder if something was amiss. However, we pressed on still using the trusty compass and eventually made out a hazy shoreline to the north. Aha! Canada! Fortunately, a fish tug was heading east along the shore line. We hailed it, only to find that we were just off Port Burwell which is to say about 40 miles west from where we expected to be.

That taught us three lessons:

1. Don't be so cocksure of oneself and one's new abilities,
- 2 Never trust the captain. Bob had moved the tv to a safer spot down below and not mentioned it. Unfortunately, the safe spot was directly under the compass.
3. TV's have big magnets in them. Compasses love big magnets.

After a quick turn to starboard, we eventually got back to Booth's Harbour about 5 hours after we expected, with an engine running on fumes.

Great times!!! Isn't there something about any landing one can walk away from is a good landing... Maybe the same for boats!!

OUR OUTREACH ON RWANDA #10

By JoAnne Easton

Lines and Tales - from Rwanda-

On our 2007 trip, we also visited Akagera National Park. This is one of my favourite adventures as we go on a tour of the park to see all the animals. I really look forward to seeing the different animals in their natural habitat. (I love a safari and everyday have "Wild Earth" on You Tube on my TV as I daily take a virtual safari in South Africa.

Check it out if you can) For me, it is always running in the background and when they come across lions, I always pay attention.

The night before our park visit, we all stayed at a northern Anglican Diocese Visitors Lodge which was located about an hour from the park. There are two main entrances to the park, a north and a south entrance. You have to go in the south entrance, which takes about 35 minutes from the park boundary to get to the Park Centre where you would register, pay the entrance fees and pick up a guide. We have learned a lot since that first trip and I have arranged many times for the same fellow with his vehicles to accommodate our transportation needs. He lived in Switzerland for many years and on his return to Rwanda, purchased two "Doctors without Borders" vehicles and converted them to transport people within the park. The top of the vehicle pushes up and you can view the trip this way, standing for a change instead of sitting. Aimable speaks English very well so not only is he our driver and protector but also our translator. We saw many animals but didn't see an elephant until a few years ago. Depending on when the rainy season happened will determine where you will go in the park to see the animals. When it is drier you head for the North and this can take some time but it is worth it. Water buffalo, hippopotamus, crocodile, giraffe, monkeys, zebra, warthogs, and gazella to name a few. More people in Africa are killed by hippos than any other animal. There were no rhinos or lions until 2018. They lost many animals during the genocide as people needed food to survive. They are now re-introducing and increasing the population of different species.

Some pictures to visualize the visit to the park

Will continue again next week...

July

"In winter I get up at night
And dress by yellow candle-light.
In summer quite the other way,
I have to go to bed by day.

I have to go to bed and see
The birds still hopping on the tree,
Or hear the grown-up people's feet
Still going past me in the street.

And does it not seem hard to you,
When all the sky is clear and blue,
And I should like so much to play,
To have to go to bed by day?"

- Robert Louis Stevenson, Bed in Summer
