Back in the twenties when getting around was not as easily done as it is today, people often relied on the train to get them to Toronto. Thus it was that when the time for the annual Good Roads Convention rolled around, several of the local councillors seized the opportunity for a good time in the Big City and made their way to Toronto by rail. Now this was a trip not to be taken lightly. A person would never think of travelling to our provincial capital in anything but his or her best outfit - no dashing to the game wearing shorts and a t-shirt back then - no, this was a time for proper decorum.

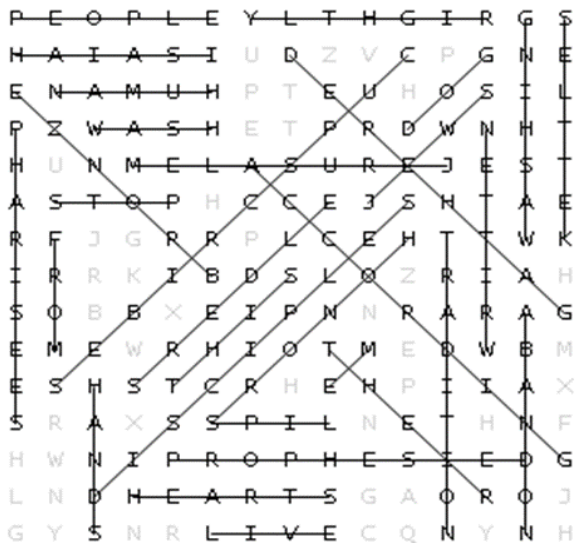

So taking all of that into account, one of our local councillors wore his Sunday best. He set out for the Big Smoke with shoes shined to a T, pants pressed with a sharp crease, a proper vest covering a freshly starched shirt complete with a suitable tie and all topped with a suit coat to match. He was in his mind quite the proper looking gentleman.

Now the taxi drivers back then knew that there would be a lot of people coming to the Convention who were not used to the city and exactly where they were going. So it was that when our South Walsingham councillor disembarked from the train, he was quickly attended to by an experienced cabbie and led to his taxi. As he settled himself into the back seat, the cab driver anticipating that our local gentleman was staying at the Convention hotel, turned and asked in an assuming manner, "King Edward?"

To which our sartorially resplendent representative responded, "Why no, Harold Dunbar, South Walsingham."

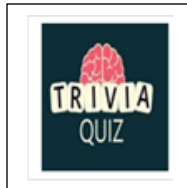

Better to be mistaken for royalty, than for just some guy from the country, I'd say!!!

OUR OUTREACH ON RWANDA #16

By JoAnne Easton

Lines and Tales - from Rwanda-

I will pick up later to describe others who I travelled with and who provided a service to the school but presently I want to tell you about the first graduation. The education system has changed and evolved during the past 14 years. The first group of students who attended were at the school for 3 years and had a very close family-like student body.

All Rwanda schools include learning the national dance routines and singing Rwanda-familiar songs. The First Graduation Ceremony was a big deal. It was held at the school on the flats by the river and included government officials, district representatives, the bishop and church officials. The importance of the students was very much a part of the ceremony.

This ceremony was a very important event for the whole community as it drew thousands of people to view the outside festivities.

Several shaded areas and many chairs for guests to sit were set up. The bulk of the community surrounded the sandy circle, where the speeches occurred, the dancing was performed and certificates were presented. They sat or stood in the sun with or without umbrellas. Some of us visitors were honoured to present the students their certificates. They also brought other dancing groups to participate in the event. There were many speeches and the whole program was 3 to 4 hours long, similar time as a Sunday church service. Mind you it was all in Kinyarwanda language at that time. Box lunches were provided to invited guests and students. It was quite an event for such a remote and impoverished area. It provided hope and optimism for the future.

Will continue again next week...

Remember 9.11.2001

Gander, Newfoundland

20 Years ago, this small Canadian town on an island in the North Atlantic Ocean took in nearly 6,700 people – almost doubling its population – when the Sept. 11, 2001, terror attacks in New York and Washington forced 38 planes to land here

In a world today seemingly fraught with division, terrorism and hate, they'd do it all over again. Kindness is woven into the very fabric of their nature — they don't know any other way to live.
